Clocks

David creates original hand crafted grandfather clocks.

David designs and makes the case, usually of English Oak, however any hardwood can be used. Then the face is hand painted, in oils, depicting country or wildlife scenes of your choice.

Metal gun cabinets can be housed within the clock casing turning them into a stylish piece of furniture, while still conforming to regulatory standards. Also the bottom two thirds of the case can be a drinks cabinet.

Each clock is unique, made specifically to your own requirements.

David sources his timber from local land owners, purchased in the log, he then has it planked up and left to air dry for at least three years, then it is kiln dried.

Antlercraft

The antlers used for the making of the chandeliers and antlercraft usually come from wild red deer from the Scottish Highlands. A few are sourced locally.
